GLAD NEWS.

During the present week prominent Catholic laymen of this city have received letters from officers of the Superior Council of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, in New York, and it is believed that they will result in the speedy adjustment of the minor differences that have existed for several months among members of the Particular Council in Louisville. This will be glad news for all the members of the local conferences.

EDUCATE YOUR CHILDREN.

The opening of the school season is fast approaching. Scarcely ten days will elapse before colleges, academies and schools will throw open their doors. It is the duty of all Catholic parents to see that the children committed to their care receive a sound Christian education. There are many Catholic parents who can afford to send their boys and girls to the colleges and academies, where they get the highest and best advantages. To these the Kentucky Irish American wishes to say, read the advertisements of St. Xavier's College, St. Catherine's Academy and Loretto Academy that appear elsewhere in our columns.

A NEW RECRUIT.

We are in receipt of a copy of the Marion County Leader, a Republican weekly journal published at Lebanon, Ky., and established a few weeks ago. It is a bright and entertaining four-page journal, and its only fault is that it is Republican in its doctrine. However, the fault can be overlooked, because the great American people like fair play and a square deal, and they get both by argument. It would never do for the editors of American journals to be all of one political mind. The Marion County Leader is ably edited by C. A. Johnston, assisted by R. C. Blandford and by J. Arthur Smith, the energetic business manager. The Kentucky Irish American hastens to welcome the Marion County Leader to the ranks of Kentucky journalism.

THE SPRINGFIELD HORROR.

The series of riots at Springfield, Ill., which resulted in the death of at least six men and the wounding of nearly a hundred, to say nothing of the destruction of property, ought to be a lesson to every thinking person. A wise man has said: "The good that men do lives after them." So also does the evil that men do. The heinous crime of a brutal negro so infuriated the people of the Illinois capital that they lost all semblance of reason and ran riot through the town, shooting, lynching, burning and destroying.

The crime of one man has made thousands mourn. It has rendered innocent people homeless. It has bereft families of their natural protectors. It has cost the State thousands of dollars to provide militia to suppress the outbreak, and has aroused anew the spirit of race hatred.

If the crime of a brutal and ignorant negro has wrought such havoc, what can we expect the offenses of the more enlightened white people to lead to? Every evil deed committed spreads itself, but people do not always remember that.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

It is an ill wind that blows nobody good, and Parliament in taxing the people of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales to pay old age pensions, has conferred a benefit on many aged natives of Ireland. Anent the pension act the editor of the Dundalk Democrat writes:

The old age pensions act comes into operation on January 1 next, and it will very soon be the duty of the County Councils to provide the machinery for carrying out this law. It will be their duty to appoint committees to examine in the first instance the applications made for pensions. If they pass the applicants as being entitled to pensions, and if the local officers of inland revenue, who have to examine the cases on behalf of the treasury, endorse the recommendation of the committee, the applicant will at once enter into the enjoyment of the pension promised by the State. If they disagree the local Board of Guardians will have to decide the matter by inquiries. No doubt there will be great difficulty experienced in the beginning in deciding on the bona-fides of many applications. There was no system of public registration of births in Ireland seventy years ago; and so for many years to come secondary evidence of age must be accepted. Again, there will doubtless be peculiar difficulty in ascertaining whether in many cases applicants are to such an extent destitute of means as to be entitled to the State pension. No doubt the local authorities will deal with all such cases in a liberal and generous spirit, and we trust that the same will be true of the representatives of the Treasury.

Application forms are to be had at the postoffices, and Postmasters are required to fill these up for applicants where desired to do so—though it will in some cases be preferable if applicants employ thoroughly sympathetic assistance in what may be a delicate and difficult matter.

A RARE CHANCE.

The Louisville Lighting Company has always been fair toward its patrons and has given the best service for the least money. Its competitors are continually striving to take away its business, but are never successful. Just now the Louisville Lighting Company is making an extraordinary offer to residents of this city, an offer that ought to be appreciated. If Louisville wants to keep in the game as a progressive city it must have more electric lights. Electricity is cleaner, safer and gives better service than gas for illuminating purposes.

FROM AUSTRALIA.

His Eminence Cardinal Patrick Moran, Archbishop of Sydney, Australia, ought to be made an American by adoption. This is what he had to say in welcoming the American fleet:

"I can not but regard the present magnificent parade of the American fleet as a sure guarantee and pledge of peace among Christian nations and as an epoch making event in the world's history. I am confident that the Catholic body in Sydney will on many accounts offer a most cordial welcome to the American visitors, and we may possibly avail of the opportunity which this interesting visit presents to commemorate in some befitting way the beneficent influence and far-reaching providential mission of the United States."

Cardinal Moran was born in the County Kildare, Ireland, September 17, 1830. Despite his long residence in Australia he shows that he is still in favor of the peace and prosperity that was denied him at home.

RETRIBUTION.

For years many Americans have been fooled with the jargon about the Anglo-Saxon blood that binds us to the mother country, England. The thinking Americans remember what a mother England was to her American colonies; what she did in the war of 1812-15; the attitude she took toward the Union in the civil war. The recent exhibition of British unfairness at the Olympic games has set many more Americans thinking. The American journalists are now investigating British methods and the government of her colonies.

The Saturday Evening Post, of Philadelphia, is one of the foremost journals in the hunt for the British lion just now, and has gathered statistics to show that the English people are unfair. Read this:

"Drastic legislation is shaping to discourage sedition in India, and wheat, which literally millions of Indians need for nourishment, is weekly exported to Liverpool, England has long been taking the wheat and sending back anti-sedition laws."

"During the last forty years of the nineteenth century some fifteen million people perished of famine in India—not because means of transportation were lacking, still less because the country was not abundantly capable of producing all the food its inhabitants needed, but because the people were too wretchedly poor to buy it."

"Lord Curzon estimated the average annual income of the agricultural population (three-quarters of the whole) as $6 a head, in a land rich in natural resources, whose density of population is less than half that of England and Scotland, only half that of Japan, and but little more than half that of Italy and Germany. So naked and helpless are the people that at any adverse breath they die like flies."

"From these people England draws, in one way and another, about a hundred and fifty millions dollars a year—maintaining the six-dollars-a-head level. Such is the largest fact concerning English rule in India."

"Security of life and property has been achieved—that is, of the Englishman's life and property. The Indian has no property to secure, and his life depends upon whether it happens to rain abundantly at the right season in his own neighborhood."

"That many millions of Indians, year in and year out, never have enough food to satisfy their hunger is the testimony of Englishmen themselves. They testify also to many millions of acres that might be brought under cultivation by public works, such as drainage and irrigation, while steady productivity of the area already cultivated could be assured by like works."

Now look at another picture. See how the American Government has treated its colonies in the Philippine Islands, in Sulu, Guam and Porto Rico. Look what it has done and is still doing for the people of Cuba. Some day the American people will fully comprehend the depth of duplicity to which the English will descend, and at the same time they will realize the full glory of American government.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

Late News That Will Interest Members Here and Elsewhere.

Associate members are now eligible to the offices of Grand Knight and Deputy Grand Knight. Knights in every State are urging their respective Congressmen to vote for the Discovery day bill, which will make October 12 a national holiday. Delegates to the national convention ordered a referendum of the councils of the order to be taken on the question of appropriating $500,000 to the Catholic University.

Wisconsin Knights had a splendid outing at Lake Ononowoc all last week. The Knights and their families camped out, engaged in athletic sports, heard lectures and attended religious exercises.

At the national convention held in St. Louis recently the delegates voted against a proposition to affiliate with the American Federation of Catholic Societies. The vote did not mean a disapproval of the Federation idea, but a desire to be conservative until federation plans are more clearly defined.

Members of the order in Chicago have protested against the removal of the Drake fountain, the only statue of the discover of America now in that city, from the downtown district to South Chicago. More than 50,000 Knights consider the threatened removal as an affront to the Catholics.
